

ANGRY MEN, ANGRY WOMEN, ANGRY WORLD

Moving from Destructiveness to Creativity

by Gary Reiss LCSW, Ph.D.

In Angry Men, Angry Women, Angry World—Moving From Destructiveness to Creativity, psychotherapist Gary Reiss shows us how to transform destructiveness into creativity that can heal our bodies, relationships and the world. In a world where family violence, suicide, and violence between nations all burn like wildfires, the author's practical examples, exercises and theory will excite and inspire readers to transform anger and violence into creative powers. Using examples from his own life, his therapy practice, and his conflict work in the Middle East, Gary Reiss shows the reader how to harness the power of rage for healing.

Contact

www.garyreiss.com

or 800-484-3877

CHANGING WORLDS PUBLICATIONS
Eugene, Oregon

About The Author

Gary Reiss, LCSW, Ph.D., Diplomate in Process-oriented Psychology, has been practicing as a therapist for thirty years. He teaches worldwide and is on the faculty of the Process Work Center of Portland. Gary's approach integrates process work with spiritual traditions. He specializes in conflict resolution, family therapy, and working with people in comatose states. His books include Changing Ourselves, Changing the World; Vital Loving; Beyond War and Peace in the Arab Israeli Conflict; and Leap into Living.